Notes

Upon signing in, a user sees the status of his or her tax return. The status could be received, refund sent, payment received, return not received, or a variety of other alerts.

Below, a user can see his or her previous tax returns, with the most important line items shown at the top. Here, a user can also see his complete returns and past proofs of payment.

In Settings, a user can find dependent and contact information.

Filing Tips and Tax Forms

Notes

In the Filing Tips and Tax Forms sections, a user can see at a glance what they may qualify for based on their past returns. Tax forms can be complicated and oblique; users may not know what deductions they can use in their return. From this page, they can start a questionnaire of tax situations they may not have thought of. Especially if their financial or personal circumstances changed within the past year, it would be important to go through this checklist so they can file properly with all the appropriate credits and deductions. This checklist also lives at the bottom of the navigation.

In the Tax Forms section, a user can see the tax forms they have filed in the past, along with a link to a complete list of tax forms that explains what each form is for.

Guided Checklist

Notes

This checklist is another entire section that a user can go through and enter information about their financial situation. The checklist could be done in spurts, or revisited through out the year, so that users could consult the checklist to see how the decisions they make would change their tax return for the year.

Users can search tax terms outside of the checklist, and can also go back to their profile.
